SIXTY-NINTH REGIMENT, INFANTRY.

The sixty-ninth regiment, national guard, having volunteered its services, was one of the regiments selected and designated in general orders, No. 8, general headquarters, state of New York, dated adjutant-general's office, Albany, April 27, 1898, to enter the service of the United States as a volunteer regiment.

The regiment at that time consisted of ten companies, and at once commenced recruiting to fill its quota, and to organize two additional companies. Its prior history follows:

SIXTY-NINTH REGIMENT.

(Fifth Brigade.)

Armory, Third avenue and Seventh street, New York city.

The sixty-ninth regiment was organized, October 12, 1851. In 1858 it was re-organized as an artillery regiment, doing duty as infantry. It was mustered in the United States service, May 9, 1861, at Washington, D. C., to serve three months, and mustered out, August 3, 1861, during which service it took part in the actions at Blackburn's Ford and Bull Run, Va. In August, 1861, about 800 men of this regiment joined the sixty-ninth, New York volunteers, to serve three years. The regiment was again recruited and re-entered the service of the United States, May 26, 1862, to serve three months, and mustered out of service, September 3, 1862. On returning from this service the major part of the regiment again entered the service of the United States for three years as the sixty-ninth, New York national guard, artillery, or one hundred and eighty-second, New York volunteers. For the Gettysburg campaign the regiment was mustered in the service of the United States for thirty days from June 25 to July 25, 1863. July 6, 1864, it was again mustered in the United States service for three months, and mustered out, October 6, 1864. The regiment rendered the state service during the quarantine riots in 1858; the draft riots, 1863, and the quarantine disturbances in 1892. It was reduced, December 6, 1893, to a battalion of five companies, A, C, D, I and K. The battalion was on duty at Brooklyn during the motormen's strike in January, 1895. New companies were organized for the battalion as follows: Co. B, June 5, 1894; Co. G, June 10, 1895; Co. E, June 11, 1895. The battalion was reconstituted a regiment, September 4, 1895.

Special orders, No. 72, A. G. O., May 1, 1898, directed the regiment to report at foot of Thirty-fourth street, East river, New York city, at 10 a. m., on the 2d of May; there to take boat to Long Island City, and from thence to proceed via Long Island railroad to the camp at Hempstead Plains, L. I., and on its arrival to report to Major-General C. F. Roe, commanding national guard and camp. These orders were duly carried out.

Under the provisions of general orders, No. 11, A. G. O., Albany, May 3, 1898, recruiting was continued to replace the men rejected by the medical officers, and the regiment was mustered in the service of the United States as the "sixty-ninth regiment, infantry, New York volunteers," May 19, 1898.

After the ceremony of mustering on May 19th, the regiment was presented with a handsome stand of colors by the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick of the city of New York, the presentation address being made by Judge James Fitzgerald of New York city. The stand consisted of the national and state emblems, and the historic green flag of Ireland.

May 20th, the regiment received orders to proceed to Chickamauga, and report to General Brooke, U. S. army, and on Tuesday, May 24th, it moved, passing en-route through the streets of New York city from Thirty-fourth street ferry on the East river to Twenty-third street ferry on the North river. Embarking on Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Jersey City, the regiment started in three sections. En-route it passed through the cities of Philadelphia, Baltimore, Wheeling, Cincinnati, and Lexington.

May 27th, the regiment arrived at Chickamauga National Military Park and reported to General Brooke, and was assigned a camp site about two miles from Lytle station, on the Southern railroad, where tents were pitched the same evening. At Chickamauga Park the regiment was equipped with a wagon train, consisting of thirty wagons and one hundred and twenty-one mules, and attached to the second division, third army corps.

May 30th, orders were received from Major-General Brooke to proceed to Tampa, Florida, and there report to General Carpenter.

The regiment struck camp at Chickamauga Park, Ga., June 2d; took train in three sections at Rossville, Ga., for Tampa, Fla., where it arrived June 6th, pitching its camp at Palmetto Beach on the same day. It was assigned to the second brigade, third division, fourth army corps.

While in this camp recruiting parties were sent north, and in due time returned to the regiment with 303 recruits.

July 24th, the regiment broke camp at Tampa, and in the afternoon embarked at Ybor City en-route for Fernandina, where it arrived on the 25th, and encamped about half a mile north of the town on the 26th.

August 12th, the regiment received orders to proceed to Huntsville, Alabama, and there go into camp.

August 27th, the regiment broke camp and in the evening took train for Huntsville, Ala. The regiment was separated into two sections as it left Fernandina, but at Montgomery, Ala., the railroad company found it necessary to divide it into three sections on account of the heavy grades to be encountered. On leaving Montgomery, companies E and G occupied the first five cars of the first section and had proceeded about eight miles west of Birmingham, Ala., to a point near the town of New Castle on the Louisville & Nashville railroad, where about 5 o'clock in the afternoon the five cars above mentioned left the rails while at a high rate of speed and were dashed to pieces.

The wreck occurred in a "cut" and the cars were thrown against the side of it with such force that they shot high into the air and then turned bottom side up.

It was found on examination that Private Peter Farley, company G, had been instantly killed, and that Sergeant Frank Glennon, company G, was dying. In addition twenty-six other non-commissioned officers and privates and one civilian teamster were more or less injured.

The injured men were immediately sent back to Birmingham for treatment, and were installed at Wilson and Brown Infirmary, a private institution. Sergeant Glennon died on the train while being sent to the hospital. Fifteen of the men were found to be in such condition as to make their detention there necessary. All but three subsequently rejoined the regiment.

Considering the complete manner in which the five cars were wrecked, it is providential that the casualty did not assume greater proportions.

August 29th, the regiment reached Huntsville, and went into camp about a mile west of the town in a beautiful farming valley. The soil was a red shale and covered with a short, thick growth of grass. The encampment drained well and the location proved a healthy one. The water was particularly good, being furnished through mains from a magnificent spring, which is one of the principal attractions of that part of the state.

In November, the regiment was assigned to the second brigade, first division, fourth army corps.

January 28, 1899, the regiment left its camp near Huntsville, en-route for New York city, where, at its armory, it was mustered out of the United States service, January 31, 1899.

SEVENTY-FIRST REGIMENT, INFANTRY.

The seventy-first regiment, national guard, having volunteered its services, was one of the regiments selected and designated in general orders, No. 8, general headquarters, state of New York, dated adjutant-general's office, Albany, April 27, 1898, to enter the service of the United States as a volunteer regiment.

The regiment at the time consisted of ten companies, and at once commenced recruiting to fill its companies, and to organize two additional ones. Its previous record follows:

SEVENTY-FIRST REGIMENT.

(Fifth Brigade.)

Armory, Thirty-fourth street and Park avenue, New York city.

The regiment was organized in August, 1852. The American Rifles, a battalion of four companies, formed the nucleus of the regiment. September 21, 1870, the thirty-seventh regiment was consolidated with the seventy-first regiment, companies E, D, H, A, G, K and B of the thirty-seventh regiment being consolidated with companies A, C, D, E, F, G and K of the seventy-first regiment, respectively. In 1861 it entered the United States service for three months, from April 21 to July 30. On May 29, 1862, it again entered the same service for three months, at the expiration of which it volunteered to remain, but was mustered out, September 2, 1862. In 1863 it was mustered in the United States service for thirty days, and served from June 17 to July 22. It performed active duty for the state in 1857, 1858, 1863, 1871, 1877, 1892 and 1895.

The regiment received authority to place silver rings on the lances of its colors, engraved as follows:

On the national color.—Alexandria, Va., May 24, 1861; Aquia Creek, Va., May 31, 1861; Matthias Point, Va., June 27, 1861; Bull Run, Va., July 21, 1861; Tennallytown, D. C., 1862; Washington, D. C., 1862; Gettysburg campaign, 1863; Kingston, Pa., June 26, 1863; near Harrisburg, Pa., June 29, 1863; Spanish-American war, 1898; Cuba, June, July and August, 1898; San Juan Hill, July 1, 1898; Siege of Santiago de Cuba, July 2 to 17, 1898.

On the state color.—Dead Rabbit riot, 1857; Quarantine riot, 1858; Draft riots, 1863; Orange riot, 1871; Railroad riots, 1877; Buffalo, 1892; Brooklyn, 1895.

April 29, 1898, company H, Captain Walter I. Joyce, commanding, proceeded under orders to Hempstead Plains, Long Island, to establish a camp, which was later known as "Camp Black," named in honor of the Governor, and to guard the state property rapidly accumulating there.

Special orders, No. 72, A. G. O., dated May 1, 1898, directed the seventy-first regiment to report at foot of East Twenty-third street, East river, New York city, at 10 a. m., on May 2d, and there to take boat to Long Island railroad; thence to the camp at Hempstead Plains, and on arrival to report to Major-General Charles F. Roe, commanding the national guard and camp.

The regiment assembled, May 2d, at 8 a. m., in its armory, corner Park avenue and Thirty-fourth street, and when formed, were briefly addressed by Colonel Francis V. Greene, and after prayer by the chaplain of the regiment, it proceeded to the foot of East Twenty-third street and thence to Hempstead Plains, where the regiment was given the right of line in the camp formation.

General orders, No. 11, A. G. O., ordered recruiting to be continued to replace the men rejected by the medical officers, which recruiting and examination continued uninterruptedly until the full quota was completed.

The seventy-first was the first volunteer regiment mustered into the service of the United States in the war with Spain. Captain Walter S. Schuyler, fifth United States cavalry, was the mustering officer, and the ceremony continued all the afternoon and well into the early evening. The regiment became the "seventy-first regiment, infantry, New York volunteers," May 10, 1898.

May 11th, Governor Black reviewed the troops at Camp Black and the seventy-first regiment was given the post of honor at right of line.

Major Avery D. Andrews on the evening of May 11th, brought orders to Colonel Greene from the war department to proceed south immediately.

On May 12th, arrangements to move were made until 3 p. m., when the regiment struck camp; took train at 6 o'clock and arrived at Long Island City about 10 o'clock at night. Not until 3 o'clock the following morning was the regiment transferred to the ferryboats and from them to the transports "City of Washington" and "Seneca" lying off Bedloe's Island in New York harbor.

The baggage was transferred on May 13th, from lighters to the transports, and rations loaded.

Orders were received, May 14th, to disembark and proceed south by rail. Beginning at 11 a. m., and working steadily, it was not until 10 p. m., that the regiment left Jersey City on the Pennsylvania railroad in three sections. The first was under command of Colonel Greene; the second of Major Smith and the third of Lieutenant-Colonel Downs.

With many vexatious delays and tedious traveling, the regiment arrived at Lakeland, Florida, in the early morning of May 17th, and proceeded at once to encamp on the shore of Morton Lake, about a half mile from the village and thirty miles north of Tampa. Temporarily the regiment was assigned to the second cavalry brigade, commanded by Brigadier-General Samuel B. M. Young.

Major-General Wheeler and staff visited the camp, May 24th, and inspected the regiment.

The regiment was assigned, May 25th, to the first brigade (Colonel M. A. Cochran), first division (Brigadier-General Jacob F. Kent), fifth army corps (Major-General Wm. R. Shafter).

In the early afternoon of May 28th, Colonel F. V. Greene, retired captain United States army, who had been colonel of the regiment for eight years, and whose personal value and army record were large and influential factors in the prompt enlistment of recruits, received notice by telegram of his appointment as brigadier-general, with orders to proceed at once to San Francisco, and from there to the Philippines. He left the regiment that night, taking with him the efficient adjutant, William G. Bates, who in a few days became assistant adjutant-general of General Greene's brigade. Colonel Greene's last official act was to nominate Lieutenant-Colonel Downs, to the Governor, as his successor.

Lieutenant-Colonel Wallace A. Downs received notice, May 29th, of his appointment as colonel of the regiment.

May 30th, orders were received to proceed to Tampa Heights.

After many delays the regiment arrived by rail, May 31st, at Ybor City, and late in the afternoon marched in heavy order through the sand some three miles to a very desirable camping ground.

Orders were received, June 6th, for the regiment to be ready to move on board the transport at a moment's notice.

Orders from corps headquarters were received, June 7th, to strike camp; proceed by train to Port Tampa, and there embark on transport. Tents were struck at 7 p. m., and all baggage, ammunition and rations taken to depot at Ybor City, and loaded on baggage train. Not until 1:30 a. m., was the regiment formed and marched out of camp.

All was not in readiness, although everyone worked all night, to proceed from Ybor City until 6 o'clock in the morning of June 8th, the trains arriving at Port Tampa about two hours later after considerable difficulty. The transport "Vigilancia" was assigned to the regiment and at 3:30 o'clock p. m., the whole command having stood in the sand about the tracks since morning, sweltering in the extraordinary heat, began to board the vessel.

The work of loading the baggage and horses being completed, the "Vigilancia" moved down the stream, June 9th, and there remained at anchor until June 14th, at 5:45 o'clock p. m., when the entire fleet of transports sailed for Cuba. The fleet duly convoyed, sailed slowly over comparatively smooth seas, arriving at the mouth of the harbor off Santiago de Cuba on the 20th, of June. During the voyage the health of the men was excellent. The trip was generally without incidents worthy of record.

About 5 o'clock p. m., June 23d, General Shafter standing on the bridge of the "Seguranca," which came alongside the "Vigilancia," gave through the megaphone personal orders to Colonel Downs that the regiment should proceed at once to disembark and land at Siboney, each man to be supplied with shelter tent, poncho, three days' rations and one hundred rounds of ammunition. The work began at once; continued through the night and was not completed until 5 o'clock the next morning, Colonel Downs with his staff being the last to land. Shelter tents had not been provided for the officers and the wall tents were not taken from the transports.

After breakfast on the shore, June 24th, the regiment proceeded to camp in the round house about half a mile west of the landing place, belonging to the Juragua Iron Company.

Scarcely had the regiment reached the spot and began to make ready the temporary encampment, when orders came for the seventy-first to proceed at once along the trail and over the summit of the mountains skirting the shore to reinforce the first volunteer cavalry, which had already encountered the enemy. At 10 o'clock the regiment marched four miles toward Las Guasimas, where it was halted and then ordered to return to Siboney, the fight at Las Guasimas having ended. The enemy had been routed and compelled to retire. The seventy-first regiment was first in reserve in the battle of Las Guasimas.

Orders were received, June 26th, for the regiment to move to the front on the following morning. All preparations were made, and so that the men could march, and the orders for them to carry two hundred rounds of ammunition be obeyed (the Springfield belts holding but one hundred), the horses of the field and staff officers carried strapped on their backs the extra ammunition, and the officers marched with the men.

The regiment broke camp, June 27th, at 4 o'clock a. m., and proceeded toward Santiago. On the way out of Siboney it joined the sixth and sixteenth regiments of regulars, which composed the first brigade. Colonel Cochran having been retired, and Brigadier-General Hawkins being in command, the regiment marched about seven miles on the main road leading to Santiago, where it finally went into a camp in an open field at a point called Sevilla, about five miles from Santiago. For three days great difficulty was experienced getting rations and ammunition transported from Siboney, the frequent and heavy rains making roads almost impassable.

An order was received, June 30th, about 5 p. m., for the regiment to move to the front the following morning at 10 a. m. Lieutenant Ord, brigade quartermaster, sent to the camp ammunition and rations, which were at once distributed to the men.

The regiment broke camp, July 1st, at 3:30 o'clock in the morning, and proceeded toward Santiago; the field and staff officers mounted. Having marched about two miles the regiment was turned into a field at the left and formed into columns of masses, joining the sixth and the sixteenth regiments. After resting about half an hour, the first brigade, led by General Hawkins, proceeded toward Santiago.

At El Poso, some mile and a half along the road, the regiment was halted and detained by large numbers of Cuban soldiers rushing down the hill and blocking the road. They had been fired upon when Grimes' battery at the top of the hill had engaged the enemy entrenched in front of Santiago. A little further along the road, the regiment was again halted to allow the cavalry brigade to pass, and then the regiment resumed its march. Scarcely having done so, it came within the zone of the enemy's fire, where it remained for a full half hour. Marching fours front through a thick jungle, with shells bursting over them, bullets whizzing about them, and occasionally a sharpshooter's unmistakable fire in the midst of them; some were killed and several wounded while thus going to a point where General Kent ordered Colonel Downs to turn his regiment to the left, and proceed to the ford of a stream, and there deploy it.

During the day the regiment participated in the capture of San Juan Hill. At a critical time Major Keck led the third battalion forward and as they moved toward San Juan Hill, Major Wells followed with the second and part of the first battalions. On crossing the stream at the foot of the hill Major Wells assumed command, and appointed Captain Linson acting major of the first battalion, and Captain Goldsborough acting major of the second battalion, and all moved forward and took part in the capture of the block house. Captain Rafferty, with company F, having previously obtained permission of the colonel of the regiment to go forward, had already ascended the hill. The enemy used smokeless powder, and so did the regulars.

The seventy-first regiment had Springfield rifles and did not have smokeless powder. The firing brought at once upon the men in the trenches the storm of the enemy's fire, and they were soon ordered not to fire unless they could procure Mauser rifles. This not a few did; taking those they could find which wounded or dead men could no longer use. During the night the regiment worked continuously digging trenches and building breastworks preparatory for the work of the following day.

Firing opened, July 2d, at dawn; the battle continuing through the day. During all this time the regiment held its position in the trenches. The first and second battalions were at the right of the famous San Juan block house, and the latter was held as a support to the twenty-fourth United States infantry, which occupied the trenches on the left of the block house.

At night a severe attack was made upon the trenches of the seventy-first by the Spaniards. During the attack the regiment held its position in the trenches, and kept up continuous firing for fully an hour and a half.

Fighting commenced at dawn, July 3d, and continued until noon, when orders were given to "cease firing," and a flag of truce was sent out by the corps commander. The regiment continued to occupy its position in the trenches on San Juan Hill, at the right of the block house, until Tuesday, July 5th, when it was withdrawn and sent to a position on the left, to be in closer touch with the other regiments of the first brigade.

Orders were received from division headquarters, July 8th, for the regiment to report to General Lawton at daylight the following morning.

The regiment broke camp, July 9th, at 2:30 a. m.; marched four miles to the northward, and reported as ordered. It was assigned at once to a position in the trenches; the first battalion, occupying those vacated by the fourth United States infantry, who occupied those vacated by General Garcia's troops, and the third those vacated by the second Massachusetts volunteers.

The regiment did desultory firing in the trenches during July 10th and 11th, and subsequently between the times flags of truce were flying and the process of negotiations between the generals of the opposing forces.

The regiment remained until August 8th, in the position assigned them by General Lawton, merely moving and encamping as best it could with insufficient shelter tents back of the trenches and occupying two hills in the valley, between which ran a trail from El Caney road to Santiago northward through all the camp, for a distance of four miles.

Severe and extended sickness pervaded the regiment the moment the enemy surrendered. Water was a full mile and a half distant and had to be transported in canteens. Daily rains and wholly insufficient shelter, with no variety of food, and the inadequate facilities for cooking which were provided, combined to make the life of the regiment excessively hard to endure.

Orders came, August 8th, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the second battalion, together with companies B and L of the third battalion, to proceed to Santiago and board the transport "La Grande Duchesse" at 4 o'clock, and in a drenching rain the troops marched three miles into Santiago.

Not until August 10th, was "La Grande Duchesse" able to get under way; her machinery being out of order, and her steering gear unable to work. The balance of the regiment left camp on the morning of the 10th of August, marching to Santiago, where the first battalion boarded the auxiliary cruiser "St. Paul," and companies E and K the auxiliary cruiser "St. Louis." The regiment was by these vessels transported to Montauk Point, L.I., where "La Grande Duchesse" was quarantined for three days; yellow fever having appeared during the voyage and several victims having died and been buried at sea.

On August 19th, the last of the companies disembarked. Each detachment was kept in a detention camp at Montauk Point for five days before it was finally transferred to the permanent camp, at the extreme westerly end of the reservation.

Orders were received, August 26th, from General Wheeler for the regiment to prepare to proceed to its home station, New York city, and there to be furloughed for a period of sixty days.

In the order appeared these words: "Pursuant to the direction of the President you will proceed to your homes and friends to receive the welcome which Americans have to accord to returning heroes who have fought, endured and suffered for the sake of their country, its honor and its prestige. This short but severe campaign has made ours among the great countries of the earth and you have done your full part in the great accomplishment."

The regiment broke camp at Montauk Point, August 29th, at 6 o'clock a. m., and proceeded by rail to Long Island City; thence by ferry to New York city, where it landed at South ferry and proceeded up Broadway in cable cars and carriages to Waverly place, where the regiment duly formed for parade to its armory. It was escorted from this point by the veteran association of the seventy-first regiment and Lafayette post, G. A. R., together with the officers of the one hundred and seventy-first regiment, N. G., N. Y., and reached the armory at Thirty-fourth street and Park avenue at 4:30 o'clock p. m. A remarkable ovation and demonstration of affectionate approval was received from thousands along the route of march.

After prayer by the chaplain, and a few words from the colonel, the regiment was at once dismissed and furloughed for sixty days.

The regiment assembled, October 27th, at 9:30 o'clock a. m., and work commenced preparatory to mustering it out of the United States service. This work was completed under the direction of Captain Brett, first United States cavalry, and the regiment was finally mustered out, November 15, 1898.

TWO HUNDRED AND FIRST REGIMENT, INFANTRY.

Under the provisions of general orders, No. 8, general headquarters, state of New York, adjutant-general's office, June 27, 1898, this regiment was organized at the armory of the twelfth regiment, national guard, New York city, and recruited in that city and Brooklyn.

Recruiting commenced about July 10th, preference being given to members of the national guard.

Companies A, C and I were mustered in July 16th; companies D and E, July 17th; companies G and H, July 18th; company F, July 21st; companies K and M, July 22d; company L, July 23d, and company B, July 26, 1898.

As soon after muster-in as practicable, companies were sent to and the whole regiment assembled at Camp Black, Long Island.

September 9th, the regiment left Camp Black, and proceeded to Camp Meade, via Long Island railroad to Long Island City, by ferry from Long Island City to Jersey City, via Central Railroad of New Jersey, and Philadelphia & Reading railroad to Middletown, Pa., where it arrived about daylight.

September 10th, breakfasted and marched two and one-half miles to camp near High Spire, Pa., previously occupied by the sixth Pennsylvania regiment. The third battalion occupied four separate company camps and performed three weeks provost duties.

A picked battalion, under the command of Colonel Hubbell, attended the peace celebration at Philadelphia, Pa.

November 15th, the regiment proceeded via Baltimore, Washington & Southern railroad to Greenville, S. C., where it was assigned to the second brigade, second division, second army corps, the camp of all the troops being known as "Camp Wetherill."

During the stay of the regiment at this point Lieutenant-Colonel Edmund P. Cottle was detailed as provost marshal at Greenville. He performed his duties in such a manner that he received the full appreciation and commendation of the commander of the division in an official communication, and the citizens of Greenville presented him with a sword and belt as a testimonial of the valuable service rendered by him.

Before leaving Camp Meade the regiment received orders assigning it to duty near Havana, Cuba, and in February, 1899, it was ordered to Augusta, Ga. These orders, however, were not carried out.

The regiment was mustered out at Greenville, S. C., April 3, 1899.

The following extract from a report of inspection made in March, 1899, bears on the condition and efficiency of the regiment:

"I had an ample opportunity to observe the regiment at drills and ceremonies, as well as the conduct of the men in a most trying and disagreeable camp, and it has been my privilege during my tour as mustering officer to have the opportunity of observing the general conduct of the men, and the drill and efficiency of the entire first and second brigades, of the second division of the second army corps, and my opinion is, that the two hundred and first New York volunteer infantry far excelled the other regiments of those brigades in general efficiency and discipline. This can be due to only one cause, and that, the excellent administration of Colonel Hubbell, and the support he received from his competent and zealous officers. The officers treated the enlisted men, as men and soldiers, and considering the enlisted strength of the regiment was recruited from the streets of New York city, and possessed every attribute that tends toward insubordination and mutinous conduct, I was never for a time led to believe that the regiment was other than a well disciplined organization. The greatest pleasure to me was to observe the strong affection and respect that the officers had for their colonel, and this was shared in by the enlisted men; the latter also showed great respect for their company officers. Familiarity between officers and men was entirely absent. Regimental feeling and pride was evident at all times. It would be useless to designate by name any officer who possessed especial fitness for the profession of arms, for all seemed to perform their duty in a zealous and efficient manner, and reflected credit on the state from whence they come.

“(Signed) MONTGOMERY D. PARKER,

Companies A, B, C, D and E were mustered in July 19th; companies F and G, July 21st; company H, July 25th; companies I, K and L, August 1st, and company M, August 8th.

As soon after muster-in as practicable, companies were sent to, and the whole regiment assembled at Camp Black, Long Island.

September 13th, at 2 p. m., the regiment left Camp Black, enroute to Camp Meade, near Middletown, Pa., where it arrived at 8.30 a. m., September 14th.

In October the regiment became part of the first brigade, third division, second army corps, and November 30th, found it at Camp Haskell, Athens, Ga.

The regiment left Camp Haskell, December 3d, and moved by train to Savannah, Ga., where it boarded the transport "Minnewasca," afterwards named the "Thomas" and sailed for Havana, Cuba, arriving at that city on the morning of the 9th, being the first American regiment to land at Havana.

December 11th, in the morning, and to the strains of American national airs, the regiment marched from the San Jose wharf to the depot passing through a vast crowd, a large portion of which being Spanish soldiers, whose conduct was all that could be desired. Headquarters, with companies A, C, E, F, H, I, K, and L, marched by train to Guanajay, province of Pinar del Rio, and went into camp outside of the town. This was named "Camp Barrett" in honor of Captain Gregory Barrett, tenth United States infantry, who died during the campaign of Santiago. Major Wood and the second battalion, consisting of companies B, D, G and M, proceeded to the town of Pinar del Rio, which was department headquarters. Sometime during January, 1899, Major Wood and his battalion rejoined the regiment at Guanajay, having been relieved by the first United States infantry. In February, 1899, a few cases of suspected yellow fever developed in camp. All suspected articles were destroyed or disinfected; an isolation ward and a detention camp established, and the main camp moved to the opposite side of the town. _____ was named "Camp Young," in honor of Major-General Young, U. S. A., commanding second army corps. The removal of camp had been under consideration for several weeks previous but no ~~water supply~~ other than that at Camp Barrett could be found, although the country had been thoroughly reconnoitered for miles in every direction. When Camp Young was occupied water had to be carted in barrels a distance of about three miles, part of the road being dangerous to wheel transportation.

Soon after the regiment arrived at Guanajay, Cuba, Colonel Seyburn was appointed military governor of the district, and in addition to routine camp life the American flag was raised with appropriate ceremony over the towns in the district, outposts were maintained, starving poor rationed, hospitals rehabilitated, sanitation of the towns supervised, roads and bridges reconstructed, public property inventoried, plans and specifications of public buildings, including forts, block houses, etc., made, telegraph lines constructed, postal routes opened, etc., etc.

On the 18th of March, 1899, orders having been received to muster-out at Savannah, Ga., and being relieved by a battalion of the first United States infantry from Pinar del Rio, the regiment returned by the same route and transport to that point, stopping at quarantine in the Savannah river. The regiment was mustered out of the United States service, April 15, 1899, at Savannah, Ga.

REPORT OF THE CAPTAIN OF THE NAVAL MILITIA.

31 NASSAU STREET,
NEW YORK, October 10th, 1898.

Adjutant-General, General Headquarters, Albany, N. Y.

SIR:—I have the honor to submit the following report on the naval militia during the war with Spain:

The operations of the state naval forces were divided into two periods—one of preparation, and one of active service—and into two officially distinct duties, that in the navy proper, and that in the auxiliary naval force.

I. About the first of March, the naval militia of New York consisted of forty-nine officers and five hundred and four men. On March 26th, orders were received from general headquarters, to call for volunteers to proceed to League Island, Pa., to man the monitors "Jason" and "Nahant." On March 31st, the men were ready to proceed, but the detail for the "Nahant" did not leave until April 12th, as the vessel was not in condition, until that date, to be put into commission. During the early days of April, however, Commander Duncan, and other officers and men, had gone to League Island, to help push the work on the monitors. The "Nahant" arrived at New York on April 17th, manned by the first naval battalion, with the exception of her commanding officer, Lieut. C. S. Richman, U. S. N. This vessel was the first of all monitors ready for actual coast protection. The officers and men were complimented by the commandant of the navy yard for prompt and efficient work, and Commander Duncan merits the thanks of the state for his intelligent energy during the whole period of preparation of the first naval battalion for service afloat. Lieut. R. J. Beach, and the crew, of the second naval battalion, who were fitting out the "Jason," also did their duty well, but that ship was delayed at League Island through no fault of the naval militia.

On March 31st, you informed me that the honorable secretary of the navy had requested the Governor to enlist the naval militia to its full strength. Recruiting was started, and no difficulty was experienced in obtaining men; uniforms and equipments were supplied to them by the state authorities with extreme promptness, and the force increased to 1,068 officers and men.

On the day of the arrival of the "Nahant" at New York, April 17th, the first naval battalion was called upon to furnish a crew for another vessel, the "Yankee." The orders were obeyed, and one hundred and fifty-five men were ready within six hours.

On the following day preparatory orders were received to man the U. S. signal stations at Montauk Point, Quogue, and Fire Island. Lieut. F. B. Anderson had previously been in communication with Capt. C. F. Goodrich, U. S. N., and had made preliminary contracts for equipment and stores for all the Atlantic coast. Lieut. Anderson's forethought and preparation left little to be done, and the stations were manned, under orders from Washington, on April 23d, this state being the first to report.

On April 22d, an increase of fifty-four petty officers and men of the first naval battalion was authorized, in order to properly man the engine-room of the "Yankee." Through the untiring efforts of Engineer Lieut.-Comd'r A. B. Fry, they were at once enlisted, and on the following day the "Yankee's" crew was ordered on board the "New Hampshire" for duty. On April 26th, her complement was again increased by seventy men.

On April 28th, the "Yankee's" crew was mustered into the navy.

Prior to this date the honorable assistant secretary of the navy had suggested the propriety of recruiting a torpedo and electrical division. I therefore obtained authority from you on April 25th, to create such an organization, to be known as the "first separate naval division," and its formation was at once begun. The command was given to Lieut. W. H. Wetmore, who showed great energy and ability in perfecting the division. A large portion of its men entered the navy as telegraphers and signalmen, while some were assigned to cruising vessels.

On April 29th, the crew of the "Nahant" was mustered into the navy.

On April 30th, Lieutenant-Commander Robert S. Sloan was appointed on the staff of the captain, and until June 17th, when he entered the navy, rendered most loyal and able assistance in helping to organize the auxiliary naval force.

On April 29th and 31st, at the request of Rear Admiral Henry Erben, U. S. N., in charge of the coast defense system of the United States, I sent details to Willet's Point, by your authority, to assist in protecting the mine fields, as Admiral Erben had no one to fulfill this duty. These men were volunteers, and it is respectfully suggested that the general government be asked to defray the expense incident thereto. On May 7th, the Governor ordered a patrol of the lower bay and of Throgg's Neck, to consist of eight tugs, one steam launch, and a yacht (kindly loaned by Mr. Alfred Carr), the general government not having sufficient vessels in this district to take care of the mine fields, and protect incoming and outgoing commerce. Seventeen officers and 112 men of the second naval battalion, ably commanded by Lieutenant-Commander R. P. Forshaw, performed this duty in a most creditable manner for ten days, the state assuming the expense of the tugs and the pay of the men.

I would respectfully call your attention to the large amount of work done by the naval militia during the preceding dates; the total interval being less than a month. The organization was doubled in strength; over four hundred recruits were fully equipped and uniformed; three large naval vessels were manned and officered; signal stations were established, and the commerce of the harbor of New York protected for ten days. These labors were accomplished by the state. Our organizations were not recognized, as such, by the navy department; both officers and men laboring as individuals without pay from the government. They were compelled to stand examinations of a high standard, and while adjusting their business affairs had no promise that they would be given a reward for their patriotic self-sacrifice. As one of the many instances of that self-sacrifice, the "Nahant's" crew served from about the 1st of April to the 29th of that month before it was mustered into the navy, and certain of the officers who had been on board the vessel from the time she left League Island did not receive their orders to the monitor until June 14th. Again, the rations for the coast signal service had to be supplied by the state, for many days, after the men were on their stations. These facts are mentioned not in criticism of the past, but to prevent a repetition of such errors in future wars, and to show the preparedness of the military department under your charge.

The second naval battalion is especially worthy of commendation for its activity in recruiting and its steadfastness to duty. It was a new organization without suitable headquarters; had to overcome many obstacles incident to novel conditions, and there was great uncertainty as to whether its men would be accepted by the government. I respectfully urge that the borough of Brooklyn be requested to provide the second naval battalion with a proper armory on the water front at the earliest possible date.

On May 14th, the navy department reported that the monitor "Jason" was ready for sea. Seven officers and sixty-five men from the second naval battalion, and one officer and ten men from the second separate naval division left the following day to man that vessel at League Island. She arrived at New York on May 23d; thence proceeded to Fisher's Island, and remained near that locality until the close of the war.

II. Work of the Auxiliary Naval Force.*—Up to this time only about one-half of the naval militia had been called into war service, and little had been done, except by the coast signal office in Washington, to place the organization in the field of duty for which it had been especially trained. Through the persistent and intelligent efforts of Capt. H. L. Satterlee, assisted by Lieut. Aaron Vanderbilt, Congress passed, in June, a law creating an auxiliary naval force, to consist of members of the naval militias of the states, and other persons, and on June 14th, the U. S. S. "New Hampshire" was transferred to the navy. From that date to the close of the war she was used as a receiving ship and for the headquarters of the third district. Captain John R. Bartlett, U. S. N., was appointed chief of the U. S. auxiliary naval force, and all the states are indebted to him for his appreciation of the proper sphere of the naval militia, and for his untiring efforts in its behalf.

The appendices show that up to this date only 521 of the naval militia had entered the navy. The second separate naval division of Rochester had not been recognized by the navy department, although a recruiting office had been opened at Buffalo. The men of this division had been mustering daily at their armory, but no orders were received from Washington, and at my request Captain Bartlett succeeded in getting recognition for this organization, and 64 officers and men were allowed to enlist. Lieutenant Walbridge and his division accepted any duty on any ship or station.

On July 5th, I had the honor of receiving a commission as lieutenant-commander U. S. navy, and on July 8th, was ordered, as assistant to chief, U. S. auxiliary naval force, in charge of the third district.

*The auxiliary naval force, although an addition to the navy, was part of the regular service. The officers received the same commissions as other volunteers and the men were enlisted into the United States navy.

The district extended from Newport, R. I., to Seabright, N. J., and included the following vessels:

New Hampshire,	Lieut.-Comdr. J. W. Miller, commanding.
Nahant,	Lieut. E. M. Harmon, commanding.
Jason,	Lieut. Gardiner I. Jones, (*) commanding.
Aileen,	Lieut. W. R. Addicks* and Lieut. W. H. Stayton, commanding.
Free Lance,	Lieut. T. C. Zerega, commanding.
Elfrida,	Lieut. (J. G.) M. A. Orlopp, commanding.
Enquirer,	Lieut. W. H. Stayton, commanding.
Huntress,	Lieuts. F. Parker () and W. R. Addicks, () commanding.
Restless,	Lieut. A. H. Day, (*) commanding.
Kanawha,	Lieut. F. F. Fletcher, (*) commanding.
Sylvia,	Lieut. W. G. Ford, commanding.
Viking,	Cadet B. B. Wygant, (*) commanding.

The "Kanawha," "Sylvia" and "Viking" were almost immediately detached and sent to Cuba. The "New Hampshire" became a school of instruction, and the cutters supplied by the state were useful in exercising boat crews for "distant service." Lieutenant R. P. Forshew rendered valuable service as executive officer of the "New Hampshire."

When I took command of the district all the above vessels, except the "New Hampshire" and the two monitors, were under repairs at the New York navy yard, but through the exertions of their officers five of them were on their stations by July 15th. The duty assigned was to protect the mine fields at Sandy Hook, the Narrows, and Throgg's Neck, and to patrol the entrance to New York harbor. The importance of this duty was self-evident, the vessels were scouts to announce the approach of the foreign foe, but more especially were they necessary for the guidance of domestic and deep-sea vessels through the intricate mine fields.

(*) Lieuts. Addicks and Jones belonged to the Massachusetts naval militia; Lieut. F. Parker and Lieut. Day, to the Connecticut militia; Lieut. Fletcher and Cadet Wygant to the regular navy.

The commerce of the great port of New York needed protection at every moment, while the mines had to be maintained intact, ready for instant use. The officers assigned to these vessels required, in addition to seaman-like qualifications, an intimate knowledge of inland waters, as well as decision of character to properly enforce the harbor regulations, and to deal with the merchantmen. The captains of the patrol boats fulfilled these requisites, and performed their duty with a thoroughness which was highly commendable. Many of the officers in addition to their cruises along shore during the previous years, while in the naval militia, had had ten days' experience from May 7th to May 17th, in the service, when the Governor ordered them to tugs patrolling the same mine fields.

About the end of July, the danger from an enemy's fleet having disappeared, the army removed most of the mines, and on July 30th, I proceeded from New York with the "Elfrida," "Free Lance," "Aileen" and "Restless" for a cruise of instruction through Long Island sound; the "Huntress" joining the squadron on August 2d. It was a most valuable experience for all. The squadron was kept at close distance most of the time, and the various commanders vied with one another in perfecting fleet evolutions. The target practice was fair, and the night attacks at Fisher's Island showed that the men were alert, and could be soon taught to appreciate war conditions. The vessels were handled well, especially in going in and out of harbors at night. The squadron returned to New York on August 9th.

The next service performed by the naval militia, composing the auxiliary naval force, was the patrol work at Montauk Point. On August 11th the "Aileen," Lieutenant W. H. Stayton commanding, was sent to Fort Pond Bay to report to Passed Assistant Surgeon Macgruder, U. S. quarantine hospital service, and on August 14th I arrived there on the "Restless." The proper courtesies were exchanged with the army officials on shore. Subsequently, on August 24th, the "Restless" was relieved by the "Elfrida." Relative to the duty performed at Montauk, I quote from the excellent report of Lieutenant Stayton submitted to me:

The work was of various characters, as follows:

"1. Establishing Quarantine Grounds.—After consultation with Surgeon Macgruder, the quarantine grounds were selected and buoyed off just to the westward of Rocky Point. All incoming transports, numbering more than thirty, were met and conducted to their anchorage by the auxiliary vessels. The transport fleet was kept anchored in proper and convenient formation, the loaded transports nearer the harbor, and those unloaded, but still in quarantine, well to the westward. Instructions were given and all preparations made for conducting the transports to safe anchorages in the event of a blow.

"2. Maintaining Quarantine Regulations.—Both by day and night the transports were prevented from communicating with other vessels or with the shore. This required active service, as many as thirty or forty vessels having been met and warned daily.

"3. Establishing and Maintaining Harbor Regulations.—After consultation with Surgeon Macgruder and the transportation department of the army, regulations upon this subject were established and enforced. There were but two wharves, one used for quarantine and the other for general purposes. All incoming vessels were stopped and directed to the proper wharf. They were required to anchor in proper formation at convenient points until the facilities for landing permitted the vessel to go to the wharf, due regard being paid to seeing that troops and perishable stores were first landed.

"4. Attending to the Landing of Troops.—The vessels were in constant attendance and rendered assistance when requested, and whenever the service could be performed without danger of infection.

"5. Carrying Stores to Transports.—Many transports came in short of stores, provisions and medicines. We supplied them with Red Cross, army and stores received from individual contributions. We also met each incoming transport; ascertained the needs of those whose troops could not at once disembark, and to the best of our ability supplied them. The patrol vessels also performed all possible service for the Red Cross, purchasing, carrying and distributing stores necessary for the immediate relief of the sick.

"Various miscellaneous services were also performed, such as transporting sick officers; taking the convalescents out for air; carrying general officers to places they desired to visit officially; taking dispatches to and from men-of-war in quarantine. This latter item, while seemingly unimportant, resulted in getting the 'St. Paul' and 'Harvard' away from Fort Pond Bay sooner than they would otherwise have left. Telegrams could not be sent on board the vessels, and would have remained at the office for days. We took the telegrams, opened them, and delivered them by megaphone, saving many days charter price of the American liners.

"In conclusion, I have the honor to report the very valuable services of Surgeon J. C. MacEvitt, of the 'Jason,' who went ashore, and, during that vessel's stay, performed arduous and valuable service in charge of a ward in the hospital. Maj-Gen. Young, U. S. A., requested me to specially mention Surgeon MacEvitt's services and requests your commendation thereof. Lieut. Jones was indefatigable in his efforts to relieve the sick, and was very successful. I trust you will commend him for his zeal, faithfulness, and humanity. A better estimate can be made of the extent of the services of the patrol fleet at Fort Pond Bay, when it is mentioned that the vessels averaged more than eighteen hours per day under way."

In drawing your attention to the excellent service of Surgeon MacEvitt and Lieutenant Jones, mentioned by Lieutenant Stayton, I would state that Lieutenant Stayton's indefatigable work at Fort Pond Bay was worthy of the highest praise. He was ably assisted by Lieutenant M. A. Orlopp, commanding the "Elfrida," and subsequently by Lieutenant T. C. Zerega, who relieved Lieutenant Orlopp.

About the end of August the auxiliary fleet was put out of commission, and the monitors returned to League Island. Prior to this, however, the efficiency of the naval militia had been further tested, when, on July 16th, the cruiser "Buffalo" and the transport "Rainbow" were ordered to New York from Norfolk. No regular officers were at the time available. Lieut. W. H. Stayton was ordered to command the former vessel, and Lieut. E. N. Harmon the latter. Lieut. R. P. Forshew, Ensigns E. N. Walbridge, F. P. Hill, and S. L. Crossing joined the "Buffalo," and Ensign E. N. Robinson the "Rainbow." This was the first instance when vessels of large tonnage had been completely officered by the naval militia. The work was creditably performed; the vessels made quick passages to New York, and the officers were complimented on the manner in which the ships were handled.

While the New York signal stations were not officially under the charge of the commanding officer of the third district, of the auxiliary naval force, their headquarters were on board the "New Hampshire," and Captain Bartlett was also chief of that service. Through his courtesy, I had ample opportunities of judging how its duties were performed. Lieut. H. L. Satterlee (formerly captain on the Governor's staff) and Lieuts. F. B. Anderson and E. C. Weeks, and Assistant Paymaster W. L. Sawyer, were on the staff of Captain Bartlett at Washington, while Lieut. Alexander Duane and Ensign W. H. Gunning were stationed at New York. Capt. Bartlett repeatedly informed me that these officers performed most intelligent and loyal duty. The outlying stations at Montauk, Quogue and Fire Island were in charge of petty officers, who were left greatly to their own discretion at remote points, and fulfilled the requirements of the positions to the satisfaction of the navy department.

All the duties mentioned under this caption, namely, on board monitors, converted yachts, and in the coast signal service, were those to which the state had trained its naval militia, under suggestions from Washington.

III. The Cruise of the U. S. S. "Yankee."—It should be remembered that, during April, current opinion, as expressed in many newspapers, still maintained that the "Maine" had been blown up by an interior explosion, and that the modern battleship was an intricate piece of mechanism, which might prove most disastrous to its crew in time of action. Consequently, the navy found it extremely difficult to obtain recruits, and called upon the naval militia to man sea-going vessels. New York volunteered for the "Yankee," and this merchant vessel was converted into a man-of-war and placed on her station in eleven days after her crew was mustered into the navy. The "Yankee" was the first of her type to be ready for sea; her crew was mustered into the navy twelve days before any national guard organization entered the army from this state. She was the first vessel manned by naval militiamen to be under fire; the last ship to leave action at the Santiago battle of June 6th, and the naval force of New York was in an engagement before any other volunteer organization of the United States.

The thanks of New York are due to Commander W. H. Brownson, U. S. N., for his qualities as a fair and just commanding officer, and for the opportunity he gave the "Yankee's" men to show their excellent gunnery, which won the applause of Sampson's fleet. Their previous training had been confined to coast defense exercise, but they soon mastered ship technicalities, and left the navy, on September 2d, with an unexcelled record, amid the plaudits of their fellow-citizens. The report of Commander Duncan is appended and gives the details of the "Yankee's" cruise.

IV. The Lessons to be Derived From the War.—1. The general line of policy pursued by this state during the past should not be changed. The personnel of the naval militia is well fitted to defend the immediate coast of the state. If it be desired to perfect the officers and men for deep-sea duty, the general government must provide suitable tools, in the way of modern ships. This has been recommended by me in many annual reports.

2. If the general government provides these ships, it would naturally expect a high standard of excellence both in officers and men. This standard can be obtained by the enactment of a national naval reserve law. All naval militiamen who pass the examinations should belong to the naval reserve.

3. There would thus exist two forces, progressing together towards the perfection set by the navy; that of the state, sufficient in the future, as in the past, to protect its own harbors; that of the government, to form in time of war its auxiliary naval force. The former to be an organization. The latter a collection of individuals, professionally developed from the state force and from the merchant marine.

4. The national naval reserve should have its own ranks and ratings, and they should be distinct from those of the navy. No one should be entitled to enter the navy as an officer in time of war unless he has served in the naval reserve. All officers and men of the naval militias, who served in the late war, should be eligible for the reserve; their ranks and ratings to be determined by a standard government examination.

5. The general government should standardize the naval militia of the various states, by refusing to give arms or equipments unless a certain minimum of excellence was reached. The scope of examinations for entrance to the naval reserve should be published, and a certain proportion of the naval militiamen of each state should have passed it before any aid was supplied by Congress. A special examination should be given to men wishing to join the signal service.

Some of our best officers were not able to enter the navy, although experts in the branch which the navy department had encouraged. The country thus lost the services of many of our most enthusiastic and intelligent rank and file, for the reason that they could not pass the strict requirements of an ensign's or lieutenant's examination.

Others, who were the first to volunteer, received commissions far below their deserts. The case of Lieutenant S. D. Greene was especially noticeable. He graduated with the highest honors at the naval academy, and had served in the naval militia of the state since it was organized. Notwithstanding this record he was given a commission as junior lieutenant on board the "Yankee;" the reasons assigned by the department being that the complement of that ship permitted no higher rank, and that certain members of his class were only junior lieutenants. Many non-graduates, who held lower positions in several different states, and who subsequently entered the navy, were given higher grades. The inference from the department's ruling would naturally be that it is a detriment to graduate as a "star" at the naval academy, and to promptly offer one's services to the country. Such examples of injustice can under a proper system be avoided in the future.

6. The experience of the war has shown that certain minor changes should be made, such as the following: Uniform of enlisted men should be that of the navy, as far as material is concerned, and similar in design to the regulars, with the addition of a suitable state and organization distinguishing mark, which can be removed, if necessary, in time of war. The uniform should be purchased from the navy, thereby saving a large expense to the state. Paymasters should be bonded, and their duties should be the same as those in the regular service. The physical examination should be that of the navy.

7. Although superficially not germane to this report, I have considered it my duty to dwell upon the subject of federal and state relationship, as the question will undoubtedly be brought up in official quarters at Washington. The attempt may be made to centralize all military and naval power at the capital, and to minimize the service which the volunteers have rendered the country. Certain members of the naval militia are in favor of this proposition, but others who have also seen duty in the navy still believe most firmly that the nine years of effort spent in building up the state naval forces have been productive of excellent results, even when tested by service and a war, for which the whole country was but partially prepared. They feel positive that the quick, patriotic response of the naval militia to every call made upon it, that the sentiment developed for the navy by those who had long interested themselves in marine study, far outweighed any technical shortcomings which were quickly obliterated after a few weeks' service afloat.

I, therefore, respectfully suggest that the state of New York continue its generous support to the naval militia, and that it urge upon Congress the immediate organization of a national naval reserve on the plan outlined above, not to take the place of the present state force, but to supplement it. There will thus still exist local organizations as schools for naval education; continuing the coast defense training until the individual members can graduate into a national corps. Such a process of evolution accords more with the spirit of our institutions rather than that revolutionary one which centers all power in the general government; for the government works slowly, and at a distance, in times of peace, and does not always feel the pulse of the people who must naturally be relied upon to furnish volunteers in time of war.

In addition to the persons previously mentioned in this report, thanks are due to the Red Cross Society and to the Naval Reserve Association for hospital stores and supplies and to the Sons of the Revolution for colors presented.

Passed Assistant Surgeon J. S. King and Assistant Paymaster A. R. Pardington were most faithful and zealous in the performance of the duties of their departments.

Mention should also be made of those officers who volunteered and who were not accepted by the navy, although they were well fitted for coast defense duty. Actuated by the highest motives of patriotism and without official reward, they performed many days of unostentatious service at a time when certain civilians, manifestly unfit for government positions, were clamoring for high military place and reward. The officers of the naval militia of this state, with one exception, stood by their men and received junior commissions, or not, as their country saw fit to bestow. The lesson thus set should not be forgotten.

Respectfully,

J. W. MILLER,

Captain, N. M.

REPORT OF OPERATIONS OF THE U. S. S. "YANKEE."

HEADQUARTERS FIRST NAVAL BATTALION, NEW YORK,

Foot East Twenty-eighth Street,

U. S. S. "NEW HAMPSHIRE,"

NEW YORK, September 22d, 1898.

Captain J. W. MILLER,

Commanding Naval Militia, New York.

SIR:—

I beg to submit my report of the work performed by the detail, from the first naval battalion of New York on the U. S. S. "Yankee."

I received orders on April 23d, to send a detail of officers and men to the navy yard, New York, who were willing to volunteer for duty on the "Yankee," and on April 26th, sent the detail as ordered. The men all enlisted, and the officers passed their examinations and were duly commissioned, having been granted leaves of absence by the commander-in-chief, New York state.

The crew of the "Yankee," with the exception of the commanding officer, executive officer and navigator, was entirely composed of men furnished by the first naval battalion of New York.

The only casualties occurring were the death of Landsman T. C. Le Valley from appendicitis at Key West, Fla., after an operation had been performed by the surgeons of the hospital, and the wounding of Landsman S. P. Kennedy in an engagement with a Spanish gunboat at Cienfuegos, June 17th. The latter was transferred to the hospital ship "Solace," and has recovered. When the ship's company were paid off at Philadelphia, September 2d, 1898, there was no one on the sick list, and the battalion marched across to the "New Hampshire" with 100 per cent. present, which of itself shows the care and attention that was paid to the health and comfort of the men by the regular officers in charge of the ship.

I inclose abstract of the log of the "Yankee." We joined the ship May 6th; left the yard May 9th; proceeded to sea May 11th, and from that time on were continuously on duty on the northern patrol until May 29th, when she sailed from New York for Cuba, and from that date until the ship arrived in New York, August 28th, we were actively engaged in Cuban waters.

I am glad to report that during the whole cruise there were no serious infractions of regulations, and nothing but very light punishments were found necessary by the commanding officer of the "Yankee." When the men first went aboard the "Yankee" they were absolutely unaccustomed to sea life and to looking after themselves in the messes or elsewhere, and the exigencies of the service were such that they were sent on a ship hurriedly and incompletely fitted out, and the day after leaving the navy yard the ship went to sea on patrol duty, which kept the ship constantly at sea, and gave no chance for the usual shaking down. All this made it very hard on the crew, and it took longer for them to get in shape. As to handling the battery, that was picked up at once, and the men were always ready and keen at any time to jump to their guns. While in southern waters they were called on to coal ship several times night and day, which was work of a very trying character, and work which they never had been called on before to do, but it was done without any complaints, irrespective of time or temperature, and to the best of their ability.

The only criticism that has been made of the officers and crew was the fact that they were not seagoing men, and in this respect I would state that in January last I was unofficially in Washington, and while there called at the navy department and asked if they could tell me, supposing we had trouble with Spain, what the men of the first naval battalion, New York, would be required to do. I was told that we would be on the second line of defense, and I endeavored to get ready on that line. When the war did break out I was ordered, on very short notice, to furnish a crew for the U. S. S. "Nahant" and U. S. S. "Yankee," besides manning the signal stations. These crews were furnished when required. I respectfully suggest that if the naval militia, of New York state, is expected to furnish full crews for ships in times of war, the United States government should supply them with a seagoing vessel, capable of berthing at least one hundred men, and mounting a few modern rapid-fire guns, which vessel could be taken out on short cruises in summer, and would give the officers and men a chance to familiarize themselves in time of peace with the duties they would be called on to perform in time of war.

In conclusion, I beg to state that the officers and men of the first naval battalion, New York, have responded to every call of the government; have performed all the duties that were required of them cheerfully, and to the best of their ability.

Very respectfully,

W. B. DUNCAN, JR.,
Commander.

Extract of Log of the U. S. S. "Yankee."

Thursday, April 14th: The U. S. S. "Yankee," formerly the Morgan liner "El Norte," was placed in commission in the Brooklyn navy yard.

Tuesday, April 19th: Commander Willard H. Brownson joined the "Yankee" and took command of her.

Friday, May 6th: Naval militia joined the ship, and commenced taking on ammunition and stores.

Sunday, May 8th: United States marine guard came aboard under the command of Lieutenant Pendleton.

Monday, May 9th: The "Yankee" left the navy yard and proceeded to anchorage off Tompkinsville, where we remained until Wednesday, May 11th: Proceeded to Provincetown, Mass., arriving there on the evening of the same day. That night received orders to proceed with the U. S. S. "Columbia," to the vicinity of Block Island, and in company with that vessel to establish a patrol from Block Island to Henlopen. This duty we performed in conjunction with the "Columbia," for a portion of the time, and over the whole route from Block Island to Henlopen for the remainder of the time until Thursday, May 26th: Proceeded to New York for coal. The orders under which we were acting, while on patrol duty, made it necessary for us to report every day, either at Block Island or Henlopen. In order to accomplish this, it was necessary for us to run at a high rate of speed, day and night, generally through thick and foggy weather. At night we were not allowed to show any lights or sound the whistle, so that this duty was a particularly dangerous one. This latter fact is evidenced by the accident the "Columbia" met with, shortly after we had returned to New York, when a British tramp vessel ran into her, ramming a large hole in her side and sinking the Englishman.

Sunday, May 29th: Sailed from New York, passing Sandy Hook at 5.00 p. m.; steamed to the southward.

Monday, May 30th: While at target practice, Corporal John James Murray was killed, and Private Jesse Fuller, both of the marine guard, was wounded by an accident at the forward port six-pounder, due to an unusually long hang-fire of the English cordite. At sunset Corporal Murray was buried at sea with appropriate ceremonies.

Thursday, June 2d: Arrived at Mole St. Nicholas at 5.30 p. m., and sighted in the dusk two suspicious steamers. We cleared ship for action and steamed slowly into the harbor. The suspicious steamers turned out to be the "St. Louis" and the collier "Justin." We all left the Mole that night.

Friday, June 3d: Arrived at Santiago de Cuba early in the morning, the "Justin" coming in after us. We found the fleet off Santiago to consist of the following: The flagship "New York," "Brooklyn," "Iowa," "Massachusetts," "Oregon," "Texas," "New Orleans," "Dolphin," "Mayflower," "St. Louis," "Porter," "Marblehead" and despatch boats. We at once reported to the flagship and took up our position with the fleet. About 11 p. m., the "New Orleans," being stationed next to us, sent up three red rockets, and signalled that she had seen a torpedo boat putting off from the harbor. The "New Orleans" at once started blazing away at the torpedo boat, and the "Yankee" quickly followed suit. Signals were sent up summoning the entire fleet, and in a few minutes the whole squadron was bearing down upon the "New Orleans" and "Yankee," and amidst a terrific bombardment the torpedo boat disappeared. The next morning the "Porter" picked up two expended torpedo tubes.

Saturday, June 4th: In the afternoon we received a signal from the flagship to "clear ship for action," and to take up our position preparatory to bombarding the forts. We at once prepared to engage the enemy, the "Yankee" having the best position nearest the forts and the shore. When close inland we discovered a small battery, and Commander Brownson signalled to the flagship for permission to bombard the fort near the railway trestle and reduce it, but the admiral signalled back "You may not reduce the fort," much to the disgust of all the officers and crew. About 5 p. m., the admiral signalled that the forts were not to be attacked to-day, and the fleet retired; each ship resuming its original position.

Sunday, June 5th: Lying in our position with the fleet.

Monday, June 6th: At 5 a. m., all hands were called, and 7.30 the bombardment of the forts and batteries of Santiago de Cuba commenced. The "New York" was nearest the shore, and next to her and between her and the "New Orleans" the "Yankee" took up her position. The bombardment lasted three hours, during which time all the batteries were silenced. During the latter part of the bombardment the "Yankee" had the closest position to the batteries and shore. The "Yankee" and "New Orleans" also silenced the small battery near the railway trestle. About noon the "Dolphin" noticed a train running along the railway near the coast, and promptly opened fire on the train with its small guns, killing, it is reported, 112 men, and tearing up a great deal of the track. The "Yankee" was the last ship to retire from the bombardment.

Tuesday, June 7th: The "Yankee," "St. Louis" and "Marblehead" all sailed for Guantanamo, or Fort Cumberland, arriving there about 5 in the morning, when all hands were called. We at once started in bombarding a block-house and small village near the entrance of the harbor. The block-house was entirely destroyed, as was the village, by the "Yankee," and we (the "Marblehead" and "Yankee") then proceeded further up the harbor, until we sighted a Spanish gunboat, at which we took several shots, but were unable to hit her, owing to the fact that she retired behind the fort. We then sent several shots into the fort, and returned to the "St. Louis," which had been left at the entrance of the harbor to cut the cables. This she succeeded in doing, cutting both cables, the "Marblehead" cutting the third and a smaller one; the result being that Santiago de Cuba is now without cable connection of any kind, and is unable to communicate either by mail or cable with Spain or the rest of the world. At 10 p. m., the "Yankee" sailed for Santiago de Cuba.

Thursday, June 9th: Left Santiago de Cuba about midnight of Wednesday, arriving at Mole St. Nicholas at noon. On the way we overhauled two steamers—one turning out to be the "Norse," a Norwegian steamer, and the other the "Ely," an Englishman.

We fired a blank shot from our forward six-pounder to bring these vessels to. The papers of both were examined and found to be correct. A bumboat came alongside from the Mole, and we were able to buy oranges, alligator pears, and other fruit. Heat terrific. The troops of the fort at the Mole were paraded in our honor. We left the Mole about 7 p. m., and at 10 p. m., sighted a light off our port bow. Later on more lights were discovered, one of them being a very powerful search light, and it was supposed that we had ran across the Spanish fleet. We put on full steam and eventually succeeded in getting away from the fleet and arrived safely at Santiago de Cuba early

Friday, June 10th: We reported our experience to the admiral, and a boat was sent ashore to inquire definitely whether the Cervera fleet was still in the harbor. We left Santiago at noon and arrived at Port Antonio, Jamaica, at 7 p. m., leaving there

Saturday, June 11th, at 1 a. m., and arriving at Montego Bay, Jamaica, at 8 in the morning. We found in the harbor the English cruiser "Indefatigable," and our captain went on board. Later in the day Captain Primrose returned the visit.

Sunday, June 12th: Left Montego Bay Saturday evening, arriving at Santiago de Cuba early Sunday morning. At noon to-day we sailed from Santiago and proceeded along the southern coast of Cuba in search of the Spanish steamer "Purissima Conception," arriving at Cienfuegos

Monday, June 13th: At 1.15 p. m., we sighted a steamer near the entrance of the harbor, which proved to be a gunboat, apparently coming out of the harbor to capture what she thought to be an American merchantman. We trained our guns aft to keep up the illusion, and started for her at full speed. As soon as we were close enough to her we opened fire upon her, which she immediately returned with good aim. The forts and batteries in the harbor also opened on us, the shells from both the forts and the gunboat falling close around us. Another boat, a smaller one, at this time came out of the harbor and assisted the first gunboat and forts, but eventually we succeeded in driving both of the enemy's boats into the harbor after a hard fight, and we ourselves retired to a safe distance. During the engagement Landsman Kennedy was seriously wounded in the left shoulder. We dropped several shells into the forts, exploding a magazine. We afterwards learned from the Cubans that we had hit the gunboat, killing four men and wounding seven, and the boat itself had to be beached as soon as it got to the river.

Tuesday, June 14th: Sighted a man-of-war coming out of the harbor; immediately cleared ship for action, and gave chase. She turned out to be the German cruiser "Geira." We spoke her, and she proceeded on her way. Returned to Cienfuegos, and continued the blockade of the fort.

Wednesday, June 15th: Still off Cienfuegos watching for Spanish merchantman, but as she did not put in an appearance by noon, we started at 1 p. m., for Santiago de Cuba, arriving there Thursday, June 16th, at 1.30 p. m., too late for bombardment of the forts, which had taken place earlier in the day. The "Vesuvius" was very successful in dropping several dynamite shells into one of the batteries, creating great damage.

Friday, June 17th: Left Santiago at 11 a. m., for Guantanamo, where we arrived at 2.30 p. m., finding in the harbor the "Oregon," "Dolphin," "St. Paul," "Solace," and several other American ships. The American flag was flying over an encampment occupied by the marines, and the Cuban flag flying over the village destroyed by us on our last visit. Landsman Kennedy and Seamen Whitman and Bogert were transferred to the hospital ship "Solace."

Saturday, June 18th: Coaled all Friday night and Saturday at Guantanamo, where we were joined by the "St. Paul," "New York," and other ships. Left here 6 p. m., bound for Cienfuegos.

Sunday, June 19th: En-route for Cienfuegos. Overhauled and boarded the British schooner "Union," bound from Montego Bay to Trinidad, Cuba. A small fire was discovered in one of our bunkers, which was extinguished. Overhauled a Norwegian bark, and also overhauled and boarded the British steamer "Adula," of the Atlas line, with a number of Spanish refugees from Cienfuegos, bound for Kingston, Jamaica. Arrived off Cienfuegos in the evening.

Monday, June 20th: During the night we arrived off Casilda and discovered a steamer in the harbor; also a dismantled gunboat. We opened fire on the steamer at 9.30 a. m., and she came out for a short time, but rapidly retreated to the harbor under our fire. A small gunboat also came out and fired at us without effect. We shelled the fort with shrapnel and did some damage, but, as we were unable to enter the harbor, could not destroy either the gunboat or steamer. We ceased firing at 12.30 p. m.

Tuesday, June 21st: While cruising along the coast to the west of Cienfuegos, about noon, we saw a small party of Cubans, and sent a boat ashore to communicate with them. The boat brought back three of their leaders, one of them being the governor of Matanzas, Colonel E. V. Zegueira, and we supplied them with provisions, medicines, tobacco, etc. The Cubans also told us that we sunk the gunboat that came out of Cienfuegos harbor on the 13th of June, and attacked us under cover of the forts. They said that the gunboat was riddled from stem to stern, and took fire and burned the moment she got back to the wharf. Four of her men were killed and seven wounded. While the whaleboat was being hoisted after taking the Cubans ashore, it was dropped, and all the men were pitched into the sea, but fortunately they were all saved. In the evening we sighted our sister ship, the "Dixie," and our captain went aboard her.

Wednesday, June 22d: Off Casilda harbor. Tried to make an entrance into the harbor, sending a whaleboat ahead of us to mark out the channel with buoys, but finally decided that it would not be safe to take such an unwieldy and cumbersome boat up the harbor. The "Dixie," Commander Davis, threw some shells into a small fort near Casilda, the fort answering once or twice, but without effect.

Thursday, June 23d: Still blockading Casilda and Trinidad de Cuba. Nothing of importance occurred to-day. We sent a whaleboat ashore near Casilda, but were unable to communicate with the insurgents.

Friday, June 24th: Off Trinidad de Cuba. At noon, while cruising along the coast, five miles to the west of Trinidad de Cuba, we discovered a Cuban flag on the shore. A whaleboat was sent in, and brought off a lieutenant of the Cuban army, who reported that there was a small force of Cubans in the vicinity. We supplied them with some provisions and tobacco.

Saturday, June 25th: We left Trinidad de Cuba at dusk on Friday evening, arriving off the coast of the Isle of Pines about noon, where we discovered several small sloops. We fired a blank shot across their bows, but, as they paid no attention to this, we sent a solid one, to which they replied by hoisting the Spanish flag and sailing close inshore under cover of the reefs. In the afternoon we sent two cutters to the fishing boats; one boat under Lieutenant Cutler and the other under Ensign Dimock. These boats captured the fishing smacks, five in number, and brought them alongside the "Yankee." They had a large quantity of fish aboard, intended for Havana; four dogs and two Spaniards. The dogs and Spaniards were brought aboard, and the Spaniards were allowed to return ashore with their own effects later in the evening. The boats were burned and sunk during the night. In the evening we sighted what was apparently a Spanish torpedo boat, but she disappeared on seeing us, and we saw no more of her.

Sunday, June 26th: Cruising off the coast of the Isle of Pines during the night and early morning. Boarded the American ship "Hollyhock;" found her papers were all right, and permitted her to proceed on her way to Honduras. Also boarded the British steamer "Bangore Head," bound from Swansea to New Orleans. About 9 a. m., started for Key West, Fla., arriving there without any further incident on Monday, June 27th, for coal, provisions, ammunition, etc., at 12.35 p. m., and found there among other ships the following: "Lancaster," flagship "Newark," "Amphitrite," "Terror," "Miantonomoh" and "Puritan."

Tuesday, June 28th: Commenced taking on coal at 7 a. m. Transferred Seamen LeValley and Fowler and Coal Passer Mackin to the Marine Hospital at Key West, Fla.

Wednesday to Saturday, July 2d: Taking on coal and provisions at Key West. On Friday, July 1st, Seaman LeValley died in the Marine Hospital, Key West, from appendicitis.

Sunday, July 3d: Left Key West at 4 a. m. A. Kelly, jack-of-the-dust, left in the Marine Hospital suffering from the effects of the sun.

Monday, July 4th: Fired a salute of 21 guns at noon. Bound north for New York on account of the report that Seaman Le Valley died of yellow fever contracted on board this ship.

Wednesday, July 6th: Arrived off Tompkinsville at 9 a. m., having passed quarantine without any trouble.

Wednesday, July 6th, to Tuesday, July 12th: Taking on coal for ourself, and ammunition for ourselves and the ships constituting Watson's squadron. The crew was granted 24 hours shore leave, the port watch going ashore on Friday and the starboard on Saturday.

Tuesday, July 12th: Sailed from Tompkinsville at 3 p. m., and after a rough night arrived at Hampton Roads, Va., Wednesday, July 13th, at 4 p. m., proceeding straight to the navy yard, Norfolk, Va., where we arrived at 6.50 p. m.

Thursday, July 14th: Taking on ammunition for Watson's squadron and making a few changes in the ship. Commander Brownson went to Washington in the evening, returning Sunday, July 17th, in the morning. Sailed from Norfolk, Va., at 3.50 p. m., bound for Santiago de Cuba.

Monday, July 18th, a board was convened, consisting of Lieutenants Cutler and Greene and Passed Assistant Surgeon J. P. McGowan, to inquire into the circumstances of the death of Private W. W. Smith, U. S. M. C., who shot himself in the pilot-house of the "Yankee" on July 8th. The court found that he committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a revolver.

Wednesday, July 20th: Overhauled and boarded the British steamer "Brookline," of the Boston Fruit Company line, bound from Kingston to Boston, with mails aboard. Had to fire two solid shot across her bows before we could bring her to. Court-martial held to-day on an oiler and fireman for refusing to obey orders.

Thursday, July 21st: Arrived off Santiago de Cuba at 9.15 a. m. Commander Brownson went on board the flagship "Brooklyn" immediately. At noon we proceeded to Guantanamo, having in tow the converted yacht "Yankton," which had arrived off Santiago with only one ton of coal in her bunkers. We arrived at Guantanamo Bay at 4 p. m., and found assembled there the flagship "New York," "Oregon," "Indiana," "Iowa," "Vulcan," "Vesuvius," and a large number of colliers and supply ships.

Friday, July 22d: Commenced unloading the ammunition and supplies we had brought from New York and Norfolk for distribution among the fleet.

Saturday, July 23d: Still unloading ammunition.

Sunday, July 24th: The crew split up into visiting parties and went to see the other ships.

Monday, July 25th, to Thursday, July 28th: Unloading ammunition and taking on 400 tons of coal. On Thursday night the following official bulletin was posted on the gun deck, having been received from the flagship "New York": "The following telegram has been received from New York by way of Santiago: 'Washington official bulletin states that Spain formally sues for peace through the French ambassador.'" The bulletin was read with much enthusiasm by the crew.

Friday, July 29th: At 7.15 a. m., the commander-in-chief of the North Atlantic squadron, Rear Admiral William T. Sampson, with his chief of staff, came aboard, and at 8 o'clock the "Yankee" left Guantanamo Bay, steering to the westward past Santiago de Cuba, and viewing the wrecks of the "Maria Theresa" and "Oquendo;" returning to Guantanamo Bay at 5.30 p. m. The commander-in-chief then left the ship.

Saturday, July 30th: Lying in Guantanamo Bay.

Sunday, July 31st: Still at anchor at Guantanamo Bay. Visiting parties went to Camp McCalla and to the various ships in the afternoon.

Monday, August 1st: At 8 p. m., hove anchor and left for Ponce by the admiral's directions, with ammunition for the "Massachusetts."

Tuesday, August 2d: At 3 in the afternoon met the "Dixie," and upon Commander Davis informing us that the "Massachusetts" had left Ponce, Porto Rico, on Monday bound for Guantánamo, we reversed our course, returning to Guantánamo. At 11 p. m., we overhauled and boarded the British steamer "Burton," but finding her papers all right, permitted her to proceed on her way.

Wednesday, August 3d: About 9 a. m., sighted the Norwegian steamer "Marie," overhauled her and sent an armed boarding crew with Lieutenant Cutler to examine her papers; these and her cargo being suspicious, Lieutenant Cutler and his crew remained on board in possession and brought her in behind the "Yankee" to Guantánamo, where we arrived at noon. Immediately upon our reporting to the admiral our catch, and the overhauling of the "Burton," he sent us out to sea again to endeavor to catch the latter ship which we succeeded in doing about 3.30 p. m., that same afternoon, and placed Lieutenant Duncan with an armed boarding crew aboard her. The "Yankee" reached Guantánamo at 6 p. m., and the "Burton" about two hours later.

Thursday, August 4th: Lying in Guantánamo Bay. At 11 p. m., the admiral notified the "Burton" that she might proceed out of the bay at her own will; the "Marie" still held. At 10.30 p. m., the following signal was flashed from the flagship: "Secretary cables negotiations pending for peace. You will not sail until further orders."

Friday, August 5th, to Wednesday, August 10th: Lying at anchor in Guantánamo Bay. On Wednesday, August 10th, at 9.40 p. m., the following message was flashed from the United States flagship "New York": "Associated press dispatch states that peace protocol has been agreed upon." On August 8th the Norwegian steamer "Marie" was permitted by the admiral to go to Santiago and unload her cargo.

Thursday, August 11th: Got under way and stood out of Guantánamo harbor at 5.45 p. m., bound for Crooked channel, which we, together with the "Dixie" and "Brooklyn," were to patrol in search of the blockade runner "Montserrat." We remained off Crooked channel until Sunday evening at 6 p. m., without finding the "Montserrat."

Sunday, August 14th: At 6 p. m., started for Guantanamo, and at 10.20 p. m., passed the flagship "New York" with a number of other ships bound for home. The "New York" signalled to us: "Hostilities have ceased—blockade raised—we are bound to New York—proceed to Guantanamo." To which we replied: "Congratulations on going to New York."

Monday, August 15th: Dropped anchor in Guantanamo Bay at 8.30 a. m. Commodore Watson in command of the "Badger."

Tuesday, August 15th, to Wednesday, August 24th: Lying at anchor in Guantanamo Bay with the fleet under the command of Commodore J. C. Watson. On Tuesday evening, August 23d, at 6 p. m., we received orders to proceed the next day to Tompkinsville.

Wednesday, August 24th: At noon left Guantanamo Bay, homeward bound.

Sunday, August 28th: Arrived off Tompkinsville at 10.35 a. m.

Tuesday, August 30th: At 11 a. m., got under way, bound for League Island navy yard, Philadelphia, where we were ordered by the department to proceed and be mustered out. Arrived there early

Wednesday, August 31st, and on Friday, September 2d, were mustered out; paid off and sent via the Pennsylvania railroad to New York.

CAPTAIN MILLER'S REPORT OF GUARDING MINE FIELDS.

HEADQUARTERS NAVAL MILITIA, N. Y.,

NEW YORK, May 23, 1898.

Adjutant-General, General Headquarters, Albany, N. Y.

SIR:—I have the honor to enclose herewith the detailed report of Lieutenant-Commander Forshaw, commanding the patrol fleet of tugs employed by the state in guarding the mine fields in Gedney, Swash and Main channels off Sandy Hook, at the Narrows and between Willet's Point and Throgg's Neck. The service performed by this detail from the second naval battalion was most arduous, and it was accomplished in a most creditable manner. The nature of the duty called for the exercise of most excellent judgment on the part of the officers, and the benefit derived not only by the army authorities engaged in laying and protecting the mines, but also by the commerce of this port, has been incalculable.

I have personally received assurances from interested parties, indicating a full appreciation of the service performed by the state in the emergency which required immediate action in order to protect both lives and property.

Respectfully,

(Signed)

J. W. MILLER,
Captain N. M.

LIEUTENANT COMMANDER FORSHEW'S REPORT.

HEADQUARTERS SECOND NAVAL BATTALION, N. Y.,

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 18, 1898.

Commander W. H. STAYTON, Second Naval Battalion, N. Y.

SIR:—I have the honor to make the following report of the tour of duty performed by a detachment of the second naval battalion patrolling the mine fields at the eastern and southern entrances to New York harbor, acting under orders of Captain J. W. Miller of May 6th, and your orders of May 7th, 1898. Together with these orders were forwarded to me the following papers:

1. Copy of "Regulations for the Navigation of the Eastern and Southern Entrances to New York Harbor in time of War."
2. Copy of letter from Rear Admiral Erben, U. S. N., dated May 7, 1898.
3. Memorandum entitled: "Signals for Patrol Vessels."
4. Copy of letter from Commander W. L. Field, U. S. N., dated May 7, 1898.
5. Copy of letter from Captain J. W. Miller, dated May 7, 1898.

I inclose copies of all the above papers.

The detail assembled at the armory at 3 p. m., May 7, 1898, where equipments and one day's rations were served out. Detail left armory about 5 p. m., upon receipt of your final instructions through Lieutenant W. G. Ford, and left Jewell's Wharf, Brooklyn, at 6.20 p. m., on the following tugs:

"Charm," Lieutenant-Commander R. P. Forshew and Ensign L. E. Tuzo.

"Health," Lieutenant R. J. Beach, Lieutenant and Surgeon J. O. MacEvitt and Ensign Charles Hall.

"Raymond," Lieutenant W. G. Ford and Engineer-Lieutenant R. E. Hall.

"Dalzell," Lieutenant Howard Patterson, Lieutenant and Paymaster A. R. Pardington and Ensign E. J. Welch.

"Moore," Lieutenant M. A. Orlopp and Acting Ensign F. Bloodgood.

"Excelsior," Lieutenant E. M. Harmon and Lieutenant (J. G.) C. E. Braine.

"Starbuck," Lieutenant (J. G.) B. E. French and Acting Ensign E. F. Haubold.

"Atwood," Lieutenant (J. G.) T. R. Beal.

Battalion launch, Lieutenant (J. G.) C. B. Reid and Ensign F. R. Hirsh.

The "Health" and Battalion launch were ordered to Willet's Point; the "Dalzell" to naval militia headquarters, and the other tugs to duty in lower bay.

Upon arrival at Fort Hamilton, about 7.30 p. m., Lieutenant Ford and myself landed and called upon Colonel Ramsey to consult about patrol of mine fields. At 9 p. m., the tugs were detailed to stations as follows: "Charm," to upper end of Narrows; "Excelsior" to lower end of Narrows; "Starbuck" to inner end of Swash channel; "Moore," inside of Sandy Hook; "Raymond" and "Atwood," outside of Sandy Hook.

On account of severe weather; limited knowledge of location of mines in lower bay, and the fact that all lights were extinguished, except at Sandy Hook and Navesink, the "Raymond" and "Atwood" were ordered not to go outside of Sandy Hook until daylight.

The weather during Saturday night was very severe, with wind, rain and heavy sea, and the officers and men were on duty all night.

Sunday morning, May 8th, the 12-hour boats, "Moore," "Excelsior" and "Charm," transferred their crews to other tugs and returned to the city, returning to the patrol fleet about 6. p. m. This was done every day we were on duty. The bad weather continued during Sunday and Sunday night, but the tugs were able to take their assigned stations. The above stations were continued during our tour of duty, excepting that tugs occasionally exchanged stations for purposes of relief, and in order that officers and men might obtain better knowledge of the different parts of the harbor. Reported at naval militia headquarters for further instructions. Commander W. H. Stayton visited the patrol fleet and arranged a set of signals between the forts and the patrol.

On Monday, May 9th, orders were issued to the officers commanding tugs to see that men stood their trick at the wheel, and were instructed in signals, channels, lights, buoys and ranges in lower bay, the use of the lead, and practice with rifles and revolvers. This instruction was to continue whenever possible and during continuance of our duty. Signal practice was held with Fort Hamilton.

Tuesday, May 10th, the tug "Raymond," Lieutenant Ford, picked up a mine adrift in lower bay and returned it to the officer in command at Fort Wadsworth. The "Dalzell" reported for duty from headquarters during the day and remained with us during the rest of tour.

Through the generous offer of Mr. Alfred Carr, of New York, the steam yacht "Llewellyn" was placed at the disposal of the second naval battalion for service during their tour of duty. A detachment of men was sent to Manning's basin, with an additional detail sent from the armory, and the yacht was put in commission and reported to me on Wednesday morning, May 11th, at 2 o'clock. The use of this yacht was of great benefit to us and enabled us to more efficiently perform our duty. The "Llewellyn" was used as flagship of the patrol fleet during the balance of our tour.

Thursday, May 12th, the flagship reported at naval militia headquarters and took Captain J. W. Miller and staff, and Commander W. H. Stayton, on a tour of inspection of stations in lower bay.

Friday, May 13th, a detail of officers and men detached to join a larger detail sent to Philadelphia to join the monitor "Jason" and bring her to New York.

Mines were placed in mid-channel at the Narrows near the middle buoy by the army officers, and a tug was stationed there to keep passing vessels from fouling the mines. These mines were removed from the channel Saturday morning.

Saturday, May 14th, about noon the steamer "La Tourraine" in passing out of the main ship channel fouled a boat containing men working at the mines and two of the men were drowned. Two of our tugs immediately steamed to the scene of accident, but were too late to be of service. About 8 p. m., the tug "Raymond" picked up a small boat containing three men on the mine fields and turned the men over to the authorities at Fort Hancock.

Sunday, May 15th, the "Llewellyn" reported at naval militia headquarters and took Captain Miller down to the patrol fleet.

Monday, May 16th, I reported for duty at the armory leaving Lieutenant W. G. Ford in command of patrol with orders to withdraw patrol at 3 p. m., Tuesday, and to notify the authorities at the forts before leaving.

Tuesday, May 14th, contract for tugs having expired, the detachment returned to armory, excepting engineer's force and five petty officers and men who remained on the "Llewellyn" to put her out of commission.

Our active work for each day began about 3:30 a. m., when vessels anxious to get in or out of the harbor began to approach the channels through mines, in order to get through as soon as possible after 4 o'clock, the time when channels were opened. The next four hours were very busy ones trying to straighten out the ever increasing fleet of vessels trying to get through, each one impatient at any loss of time, and many willing to violate the regulations if a little time could be saved. Vessels were hailed; given directions for passing through, and if possible a tug proceeded them, and at times vessels were towed out of the fields.

Several times buoys were carried away by vessels and were replaced by us if possible, or if not the light-house service was notified to replace them. This work continued until 8 p. m., when channels were closed, and we began our all-night cruising across the entrances and from Navesink to Rockaway, keeping all vessels from passing out or in, or anchoring within the prescribed limits from Sandy Hook.

The weather, for the most part, was execrable; accommodations for the officers and men cramped, and for the first three days but few were able to remove their clothing at any time, yet all performed their duty cheerfully and well.

From time to time there has been forwarded to you reports of vessels violating the regulations of the harbor.

Lieutenants Beach and Reid who were in charge at Willet's Point, having been ordered to Philadelphia, no full report has yet been obtained from that end of the line. The last few days the detail was in charge of Acting Ensign F. Bloodgood. When Mr. Bloodgood reported to Major Knight at Willet's Point that the detail was to leave, Major Knight took occasion to express his appreciation of the work of the detail and his regret at their departure. I judge from this that their work must have been satisfactory.

The authorities at the forts assisted us in every way possible and I would suggest that a letter conveying our thanks be sent to them.

Respectfully,

R. P. FORSHEW,

Lieutenant-Commander 2d N. B.

Approved May 21, 1898.

Respectfully forwarded to headquarters naval militia, N. Y. I request that Lieutenant-Commander Forshew be officially commended for his excellent and expeditious work in organizing and employing this detail.

Very respectfully,

W. H. STAYTON,

Commander 2d N. B., N. Y.
